Tip for Everyday Life

When planning your day, do not schedule every available minute.

A useful rule is to plan only around 70–80% of your available time. The remaining time creates space for interruptions, delays and unexpected tasks.